Irrational Belief

- People believe a lots of seemingly crazy things even though there is no rational basis for these beliefs.
- People who hold irrational belief are:
  - more anxious
  - cope less well with terminal illness
  - more likely to be depressed over time
  - have lower levels of self-esteem

Religious Belief

- Science may not be able to know whether religious beliefs are true or not, but it can examine why people have those beliefs.
  - Provides social support, sense of meaning, direction and fosters development of virtues.
  - Help people cope.
  - Appealing to a superordinate principle may help to reduce dissonance (may elicit fear & guilty).
