

The influence of maid on a child's attitude development

Abstract:

Maid is assumed to have some influence on child's attitude development. Generally, in psychological term, any person who deemed to be close to someone else could be regarded as a person who may have some influence on that person. This is more apparent in children than in adult. adult is generally perceived to have more screening or filtering capability than children, as a result, adult may exercise some analytical capacity to matters either in the form of deeds or words before coming to any conclusion either to accept or reject, to agree or disagree.