ABSTRACT

This paper is aimed at discussing the type of skills possessed by Outstanding Lecturer of Islamic Education (PCPI) in premier polytechnics. This pilot study involved interviews with a PCPI in one of the premier polytechnics. Interviews were then managed through N'Vivo version 7.0 to produce themes and matrix tables related to the types of skills that are practiced both during teaching and learning (T&L) inside and outside classroom. The findings show that there are several types of skills that can be practiced during the T&L in polytechnics, such as of teaching skills, Quranic skills, ICT skills, workplace management skills, household management skills, interpersonal skills, intrapersonal skills, emotional intelligence skills, and public speaking skills.
